conference, the sheriff said that a possible motive for the murder was witchcraft. It was committed during the blue moon, which the sheriff believed to be connected to Wicca. Also, Hartung's family said that he loosely practiced Wicca and kept a book about it in his office. As of March 2016, Hartung is awaiting trial.

The first murder took place around September 29, 1572, when Garnier killed a 10-year-old girl, because according to him, she took the form of a wolf, and brought some flesh of the girl for his family to eat. He continued this ill practice which made villagers conclude that a werewolf was attacking and killing.
